

Laylee: Welcome to. So here's the thing, the podcast for small business owners, entrepreneurs, and creative educators who are ready to take their business to the next level through candid conversations, tactical approaches, and a few unpopular opinions. We're lifting the veil on what it takes to build both a life and a business that you love.

I'm your host, Laila Ahmadi, a coach for creatives and founder of the Creative Educator Conference, where we're on a mission to help entrepreneurs step into the role of industry leaders and educators. I'm so glad that you're here. Today's episode is brought to you by the Educator's Lounge, the membership for creative educators looking to become industry leaders.

If you want to join us, get your first 10 days free at LailaAhmadi.com with the code podcast. Now let's jump into today's episode. We're back for a special. We'll see you next time. Snacks size episode where three attendees from last year's conference are gonna tell you exactly why you need to be at the Creative Educator Conference this year.

Tickets are still available@creativeeducatorconference.com.

Dahlia: Hi, my name's Dalia Orth and I'm a system strategist and a HoneyBook Pro, and I'm super grateful for how Lely has shaped this conference in a way that has really provided an opportunity for creative educators like myself. To level up, um, to learn and to grow and to scale and to really just make a bigger impact on this world.

So thank you lately. It's been such a great experience and I'm really excited for all that's to come.

Angelica: Hi there. My name is Angelica Pompey with Angelica Pompey education, and I'm an educator for photographers and creative business owners. And I'm here at the creative educator conference and it is absolutely incredible.

I've never been in a space. Where I felt so motivated and empowered by like minded people that are in the industry, wanted to elevate their own education business and the amount of value that I walked away with. And so many ideas. I'm ready to implement and I want to thank Blaley for creating this opportunity for creatives and educators because there is nothing like this conference and I will come back year and year and year again.

Thank you.

Jessica: Hi, my name is Jessica Lowell. I'm with 514 Photography. This is my second year at the Creative Educator Conference and this year I want to say the educators brought everything they did not get keep. However. Brittany settles spoke this year and she talked about the secrets of wealth building.

There's not a single conference you will go to or have ever been to. If you're a creative where you bring somebody on stage that talks about what the wealthy people do, what their secrets are, how they utilize taxes and, um, loopholes and these kinds of things to save you money, put more money back in your pocket.

And my mind is blown about that, and I just love that Leili has creatively thought what her audience would thoroughly enjoy and what they would benefit from. Um, but to bring somebody in for wealth building to creatives like that, just, it just blew my mind. I just thought it was amazing. And yeah, if you're thinking about coming, you should definitely sign up and have a blessed day.

Laylee: For show notes and resources mentioned on today's episode, head to here's the thing podcast. com. This episode is brought to you by the educators lounge where rising educators become industry leaders. Come join us. If you're looking for community resources and opportunities that will take your educational offerings to the next level.

Thanks so much. Thanks for listening, and I'll catch you on the next episode.